Prerequisites and Corequisites unavailable, please consult Department

Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

- examine societies and cultures holistically and comparatively, acknowledging the breadth of human diversity as alternative ways of life
- demonstrate an understanding of and respect for human similarities and differences, assessing people's behavior, knowledge, and thinking within a framework of cultural relativity (i.e without ethnocentric value judgments)
- apply these anthropological perspectives to the critical analysis of current events and social issues
- Recognize how cultural understandings and cultural institutions frame and shape what we do, what we know, and how we think, and identify and analyze their own cultural biases and perspectives within this context
